

EARL KITCHENER SENT TO QUIET DISSENSION IN INDIA AND EGYPT

WASHINGTON HEARS THAT SERIOUS UNREST IN BRITISH COLONIES CALLS FOR IMMEDIATE ATTENTION.

TURKS MENACE SUEZ

German Agents Are Credited With Fomenting Unrest Among Natives In Effort to Stir Up Insurrections.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Washington, Nov. 9.—Earl Kitchener's ultimate mission during his mysterious absence from the British war office is said by confidential information received here today, to be India, where, according to the same information, British rule is confronted with a more serious state of unrest than has generally been known outside of British circles.

Through the thick veil which the British censorship has thrown about the events in India and Egypt, comes a statement that Nawab, Sultan Ali Mulk, the Nizam of Hyderabad, one of the most influential of the native princes, and a staunch supporter of the British has been deposed by his people.

This development coming as one of the climaxes to successive reports of unrest, many of which have been substantiated and admitted by the British government, is said to be the leading reason for Earl Kitchener's departure from England, which has been shrouded with much secrecy.

It has been officially announced that the head of the British war office was on his way to the theatre of operations in the near east, which has been interpreted as meaning the Balkans, where the critical situation of the moment confronts the allied forces.

News Escapes Censors. Information reaching the United States, however, through channels not subject to censorship, is to the effect that it is well known in London among those close to the government that while Earl Kitchener may not be in India, he is in a position to coordinate the efforts of the allied forces, his ultimate destination is not only India, but Egypt as well, where the British gateway to Asia now is menaced by the Turkish-Bulgarian-Turk successes in the Balkans.

Coupled with repeated rumors of activities of German agents fomenting discontent among the native population of India have come reports of dissatisfaction in Egypt, also ascribed to the same sources.

Since the Turks failed to cut the Suez canal, mainly through the prompt arrival of colonial troops from New

EMPEROR PRESENTED WITH BIBLE RECENTLY

Coronation Gift by the Christian Japanese Who Live in the United States.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Tokyo, Nov. 9.—When we think that the Bible, which was presented to the Emperor recently by Dr. Sturge, is a book whose teachings are interdicted within this realm less than fifty years ago, we have some idea of the great development of the Japanese Empire.

That was one of the most striking remarks made during a notable dinner of 300 representatives of Japanese who assembled last night to express their gratitude to Dr. E. A. Sturge of San Francisco, who has done much for the interest of the Japanese residents of the Pacific coast and much to develop the relations of friendship between Japan and the United States.

The function of last night was in a sense a coronation festival for it followed the presentation to the Emperor by Dr. Sturge of a beautiful Bible, contributed as a coronation gift by the Christian Japanese who live in the United States. It had been intended to present the Bible at Kyoto during the coronation week, but the program of the Emperor is so filled that it was deemed best to present it immediately. The Bible is bound in pure white leather, has the "rising sun" emblem on the outside in red while on the inside of the covers is represented the Empire of Japan in gold side by side with the coat of arms of the United States. The idea of the engravings, which include also the national flags, is that Japan and America are bound together in lasting friendship.

Beside being an expression of gratitude to Dr. Sturge, the meeting of last night was a striking manifestation of Japanese-American friendship. After saying that the United States had led her into the paths of righteousness, he declared: "I want to say this: In case of danger arising in the American Republic, I am confident that our compatriots who reside within the borders of the United States would be ready to spend their last penny and give up their lives to help that Republic if it were in danger."

Dr. Sturge was grateful for the warmth of the reception accorded him. He said he felt somewhat ashamed that he represented the United States, and never forget that the United States had led her into the paths of righteousness, he declared: "I want to say this: In case of danger arising in the American Republic, I am confident that our compatriots who reside within the borders of the United States would be ready to spend their last penny and give up their lives to help that Republic if it were in danger."

RULING MADE OVER VARSITY TUITION

Attorney General Holds That Non-Resident Minor Students Must Pay Tuition Fees at Madison.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Madison, Nov. 9.—The fact that a student may have lived in Wisconsin one year, coming here from another state, may not entitle him to resident tuition rates at the university if he is a minor, according to Attorney General Owen's opinion to the business manager of the university today.

A person who is a minor is presumed to have his residence where his father lives, and if his father is dead, where his mother lives, according to the opinion. The attorney general points out that a student must be able to show that he is not dependent in any way upon his parents and that it is his intention to remain in Wisconsin.

FIRE ON BIG LINER NOW UNDER CONTROL

Blaze in Reserve Coal Bunkers of Rochambeau Extinguished, Says Wireless—Origin is Unknown.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) New York, Nov. 9.—The fire in the passenger steamer Rochambeau, which broke out after the liner left here last Saturday has been extinguished and the steamer is now proceeding to Bordeaux.

News that the fire in the reserve coal bunker of the Rochambeau had been extinguished was received in a brief wireless message this morning from Captain Juhum, it read.

"Have succeeded in extinguishing the fire and proceeding to Bordeaux. All well on board."

The big French liner carried 671 persons and a large cargo of war supplies. When the fire was discovered every effort was made to extinguish the blaze and Captain Juhum, accordingly, wireless message to officials yesterday afternoon, headed toward Halifax. HOW TO SPEND FUND BOTHERS UNIVERSITY

New Ideas Advanced on Using $350,000 Bequest to State University.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Madison, Nov. 9.—Five new ideas have been thought of by university leaders as ways for spending the J. Stephen Tripp bequest of $350,000, in addition to the $1,000,000 already suggested by President Van Hise. The latter's suggestion that the money be used for the loan fund, a department for fine arts, or for the erection of new dormitories are being considered, although others think of many more ways for spending the money more profitably.

CHANGE ALL FOREIGN WORDS TO GERMAN NOW

Berlin, Nov. 9.—Hotel will become "Gasthof" to distinguish it from "Gasthof" is the Berlin police president has his way. This is one of the Germanization of foreign words decided on at a meeting of foreign words of various business interests held recently. "Parfumerie" is to be replaced by "Rechtshandlung," "lithography" by "Steindruck," "Abendrock" (evening coat) is to be replaced by "Schmuckrock" (pronounced "schmuckrock") as the name of the "Tuxedo" or dinner coat, and the "Frisco" or better word, which although not French, has given offense on account of its French form, is to be replaced by "Haarkunstler." The work of replacing foreign elements in the language is to go on.

The International Association of Hotel Owners has already protested an order of the interior against the use of the word "hotel" and threatened, in case the word was not obeyed, to force members of the army from visiting places retaining the old name. The hotel owners protest that the proposed substitutes, "Gasthof" or "Gasthaus" convey the idea of a simple lodging house of the poor and cheaper class, whereas the word "hotel" is used and has a definite meaning in all lands.

Take Measures to Prevent Able Bodied Men From Escaping Military Service.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) London, Nov. 9.—The British government today took its first definite steps toward preventing emigration of able bodied British subjects who in considerable numbers have been using the means of evading military service. A new regulation was issued, the home office requiring subjects of the United Kingdom who are nineteen years old or more, and contemplating the means of evading military service, to apply for a passport to the foreign office for their passport application together with their birth certificates with photographs attached.

Since the refusal of the Cunard company to carry British subjects eligible for military service last Saturday, the Anchor Line and the White Star Line have adopted an identical course. Other lines are expected to take similar action.

TWO ROUTES ARE OPENED INTO TURKEY

RAILROAD THROUGH BELGRADE AND NISH AND DANUBE RIVER ROUTE CONTROLLED BY TEUTONS.

ITALY MAY AID SERBS

Roman Troops May Be Sent to Albania Indicate Their Intentions of Breaking Through to Adriatic.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) London, Nov. 9.—The central powers and their Bulgarian ally now control about two-thirds of Serbia, and within a few weeks probably will have the main Serbian railroad running through Belgrade and Nish in full operation. It will give them two routes to Constantinople, as communication by way of the Danube to Bulgaria is already open.

That this has not been accomplished without weakening the other fronts is indicated by definite news of Russian advances on the Riga-Dvinsk front, the last part of the eastern battle line on which the invaders kept up anything in the nature of definite offensive.

Thus far the plans of the central powers in the Balkans have worked like well oiled machinery, but the latest news from Macedonia indicates that the initiative is not to be left entirely to the invaders much longer. Reports come by way of Paris that the Anglo-French forces are making their presence felt against the Bulgarians. The entente allies claim their operations are proceeding along the front with success, notwithstanding the handicaps of operating in a difficult country.

Serbs Check Bulgarians. It is reported also that the Serbians holding part of the Macedonian front have checked the Bulgarians after inflicting heavy losses on them. If the Serbians can sustain the attack for a short period the French should be able to join the fight of relief.

The Russians continue their policy of sharp and unexpected attacks at various points along the front. The latest of these attacks, according to Petrograd, were made by two successful assaults southwest of Riga, two southwest of Dvinsk and three west of Styr, south of the Pripiet marshes. The Austro-German line was broken in two places.

Except for artillery exchanges on the western front nothing of great importance has occurred recently in that theatre of war.

Italy to Aid Serbs. Rome, Nov. 9.—What appears to be a forecast that Italy will send troops to Albania to aid Serbia is contained in an official note which says that while Italy did not participate in the recent Balkan campaign, she has assisted Serbia, she has found it necessary to oppose the Austro-German-Bulgarian attack upon Serbia.

This way, the note says, was opened by the Serbs themselves when they threatened to invade Albania, reach the Adriatic, a design so dangerous to Italy's interests that "the assistance must oblige Italy to take appropriate measures to frustrate it immediately."

German Victory. Berlin, Nov. 9.—Capture by the Germans of the main Serbian positions south of Belgrade was announced officially today. In the future of Krusevac by the Germans, seven thousand Serbs were made prisoners.

NOTED GERMAN SURGEON PUBLISHES WAR REPORT ON MEDICAL EXPERIENCES

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Berlin, Nov. 9.—Professor Ludwig Schleich, one of Germany's prominent medical men, has just published a revealing book, "Observations on several months' work at the front," in which he describes his experiences in military hospitals in various parts of Germany. He dwells particularly on the psychological effect of the strain of modern battle on the private soldier.

"There is frequently," he observes, "a strange, almost awful, look in the faces of those who have been in battle. They are still willing soldiers, some of them eager to get back to the trenches, but the more highly civilized a man is, the deeper his feeling of repulsion. He does not bear that indelible something in his face, the sign that he has seen terrible things."

Physically these soldiers may be hard as iron, says Prof. Schleich, but physically they are not intact. The officers nearly always are uncanmy, marble, staring look, as though they had grown accustomed to look unshudderingly at the terrors and death which they have seen and finally felt that their eyes had become a mirror of the horrible. It is as though the claws of a demon had seized their faces and made their eyes sink deeper into their hollows. They are all changed, they have seen the head of the Gorgon in the Region of Night."

BASEBALL REPORT

MADE IN MAJORS; DRAFTED PLAYERS

The Past Season Has Been a Mighty Lean One For the Baseball Circuits—Farrell's Report.

(By Associated Press.)
San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 9.—Many interesting details in connection with the professional baseball season of 1915, which for many reasons was non-productive of financial benefit to those most closely identified with the national game, were included in the annual report of Secretary John H. Farrell, which he presented at the annual meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues here today.

A resume of the business transacted by the National Association during the year showed that forty minor league organizations, embracing 282 cities and towns in the United States and Canada, qualified for membership in 1915 as compared with forty leagues representing 200 towns and cities in 1914. Ten of these leagues did not begin the season of 1915 and five of the thirty which started failed to complete their seasons' schedules. One of these was disqualified and the other four dropped out, their failure to continue being attributed mainly to the unusually adverse weather conditions which prevailed. In one league 105 games were postponed on account of rain in a four months' playing season.

Five thousand, four hundred and seventy-two players' contracts were received, recorded and promulgated by the association during the year. One thousand and three players were released by purchase out of two thousand eight hundred and forty reported to the office of the Association for release. Ninety-one optional agreements were approved between National Association clubs and thirty-nine optional agreements were entered into by National Association clubs. Six hundred and seventy players were reported for reinstatement. Seven drafted players were claimed under the waiver rule and 738 disputed cases were adjusted by the association during the year. Seventeen players were drafted by the National League and a similar number by the American League.

Out of $72,300 received by the association for drafted players, the American League contributed $23,400 and the National League $21,900. In all $128,657 passed through the office of the National Association during the current year for drafted players, optional agreement players and others released by purchase.

The following is a list of the players drafted by the major and minor leagues:

National League.

STILL HAVE HOPES OF BEATING ILLINI

Badger Football Fans Optimistic Despite Serious Changes Made in Lineup.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Nov. 9.—Forty members of the varsity football squad reported for practice Monday, that opened the final week of preparation before the final battle Saturday at Urbana. Although Dow Byers and Lynn Smith, star backfield men, were absent, star injuries, Coach Juncos expressed his confidence that both stars will be ready to open the attack against Zuppke's eleven. Louis Kreus will start at fullback, in the assertion, with Eber Simpson at the pilot position. The line is to be composed of the material that shows up good this week, which means the regulars are not at all sure of their places. It is very likely that Gardner, Hancock and Pottinger will be on the sidelines, unless the structure of the team is changed. The reserves, Rosenberger and Simpson look better than Koch for the right tackle job. The ends will probably be played by Stavrum and Myers or Rahn.

Galvin Turns in Suit.
Mal Galvin, star fullback on the University of Wisconsin football team, who was privately protested last week by Chairman Page of the Minnesota athletic council, turned in his suit Monday night as a result of the investigations into his amateur rating.

Galvin's resignation from the team came as an unexpected blow to the varsity's chances against Illinois on Saturday. His case was investigated last week and nothing could then or has yet been found against him, but due to their continued investigation he thought it best to get out of it all and in a formal note to Dr. G. W. Ehler, director of athletics, he resigned from further athletic competitions for the Badgers.

Wisconsin should defeat Illinois decisively if scores are to be taken as any criterion. The Badgers trounced Ohio state, who in turn beat Sucker eleven. Pogue and Clark were not in the lineup when Illinois met Ohio. Since the Ohio game, the Badgers lost as a team. Chicago, a team that looks to be on a par with the Gophers and Illinois. At any rate, the Badgers are standing an even chance to win Saturday, despite the fact that they are away from home. Two hundred students plan to attend the game, leaving here Thursday night.

Edler Played With Sophs.

Raymond Charles Edler, formerly of Janesville, and for two years a star halfback on the Beloit College eleven, played stellar football at left halfback for the sophomores last Saturday against the strong freshman eleven coached by Tom Jones. Edler repeated his gains and showed signs of his marked ability, even though he was in poor physical trim. The sophs held the fresh to a 6 to 6 tie after a most crucial struggle.

DUNDEE TOO CLEVER FOR RIVERS IN TILT

Welch's Rival Carries Too Much Speed and Steam in his Left for Mexican Lightweight.

Milwaukee, Nov. 9.—Johnny Dundee, New York's wop lightweight, considered the best in America today, outpointed Mexican Joe Rivers in ten fast rounds of slashing milling here last night. Dundee fought like a whirlwind for his speed and variety of attack. Had Rivers hanging on, to escape the celebrated southern pug who the "scotch-wop" carries. The Easterner's hopping and dancing had Rivers guessing until the final round when Rivers took the aggressive and had Johnny covering up to escape the lashing blows to the body.

Dundee did all of the leading in nine of the rounds and kept on top of the Mexican in a manner that made both fight at top speed. In the final round Rivers lost his fear for Dundee's left and waded in, battering and butting him with might and main. Dundee took the blows and stood without a flinch and fought bravely back and at the finish, the popular decision was for the little Italian. One fuke knockdown featured the scrap for the eleventh round. Dundee sent a crashing left to Rivers' head doubling him up and forcing him to the floor for an instant. But was the best that had been held in Milwaukee for some time.

STATE HIGH SCHOOL RACE IN A MUDDLE

La Crosse and Riverside Most Logical Candidates for State High Championship.

The state championship football race among the high schools has dwindled down to date, to the Riverside, Milwaukee, La Crosse, Ashland, and Oconto high schools. As Oconto has been beaten by the Kenosha, Michigan high school, they do not appear very strong contenders. Ashland has not played any strong teams, and at present is a dark horse of the race. Ashland has challenged Riverside, but Riverside can not play in this city on Saturday, and a school board rule will not let the team leave Milwaukee over night, for the long trip, should the game be played at Ashland. If it can be arranged, Riverside may play Oconto, this Saturday, and La Crosse play Ashland, and the winners of these two games meet in Milwaukee for the title on Wednesday day.

Of course, should Madison defeat La Crosse, which is improbable, the race would be limited to only three teams. Should Riverside then win, it would give them a pretty clear title.

Should Riverside win the state title they would lay claim to the middle west high school title, which would give them the clearest claim of any high school team in the west, also a good claim to the western academic championship, with the possible exception of St. John's academy at De lafield, Wis. St. John's have lost to Oshkosh Normal, 13 to 7, who in turn went down before the Milwaukee Normal, 35 to 0, while Milwaukee Normal only beat Riverside, 15 to 7.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Delavan, Wis., Nov. 9.—The body of John Beamesly, aged 78 years, one of Delavan's oldest and most respected citizens, was laid to rest this afternoon in the Spring Grove cemetery. Mr. Beamesly died Sunday, after a three weeks' illness, the result of a stroke of paralysis. For twenty-four years he was instructor in shoemaking at the Wisconsin state school for the deaf. He retired in 1906, and until about two years ago he conducted a business in this city. Suffering a slight stroke of paralysis, he has not been able to work for the past two years. On July 4th he and Mrs. Beamesly celebrated their fifty-seventh wedding anniversary, which was attended by all their children and their grandchildren. The surviving members of the family are the widow and three sons, Charles A. of Stockholm, Rock, Iowa; and A. J. and H. E. of Delavan. The obsequies were in charge of the Delavan lodge of Masons of which he was a member, and the Rev. Mark H. Milne, rector of Christ Episcopal church, of which he also was a member.

Civic Club Meets.

Indications point to an unusually enthusiastic reception tonight for Governor Emanuel L. Philipp and State Business Manager L. C. Whitte, both of whom will address the annual meeting of the Delavan Civic club to be held at the Hotel Delavan, when a dinner will be one of the big features. It has been announced that neither speaker has a set speech for the occasion, but it is the general belief that they will give much attention to state retrenchment matters and that the talks will be quite in keeping with the aims and objects of the Civic club. An attendance of upwards of 100 is expected.

Value of Watercraft.

Watercraft in the town of Delavan and the section adjacent to Delavan Lake is valued at $2,840, according to assessors' reports. The town of Geneva, bordering on Lake Geneva, is credited with $91,520 worth of water craft. Lake Geneva is assessed $47,815 on the same kind of property. The town of Watworth, touching Lake Geneva, has $14,555 worth of water craft. The total of this sort of property in Walworth county is placed at $198,930.

The most successful art exhibition ever held in Delavan was that under the auspices of the Women's Council, which closed by Sunday at the Aram public library. The paintings were all by Wisconsin artists and was provided by the Federation of Women's clubs of Milwaukee. The exhibit is being sent to the various cities of the state and thus far has been exceptionally well received. From Delavan the paintings were shipped on Monday to Soughton where they will be on display this week. Choice among the pieces are splendid canvases by Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Shulz and their son Walter, the most noted family of artists in this state. The residents of Delavan, and have a beautiful home here. Without their work the rotary exhibit would be lacking very much.

Eastern Star Meet.
A large party of the members of the local Order of the Eastern Star, and to Lake Geneva to participate in a work meeting, which is reported to have been a largely attended gathering.

On Thursday evening of this week a number of members of the Eastern Star will attend a Worthy Matrons' meeting to be held by the order at the Walworth. Visiting officials of the district are to preside. Mrs. A. A. Jacobs, Worthy Matron, of the Delavan order, will serve as associate conductress. Professor E. W. Walker of the state school will serve as Worthy Patron. The party will make the trip in automobiles, and an overflow at tendence is expected from all sections of the county.

At the regular meeting of the Woman's Council held Saturday afternoon at the Aram public library, the principal speaker was Mrs. Adolph Shulz, the artist, who spoke on "Work of Wisconsin Artists." There were other speakers and the meeting was enthusiastic, especially because of the great interest manifest in the recent exhibit.

KILLS DOG ATTACKING SHEEP AT COOKSVILLE

Cooksville, Nov. 8.—Several sheep of the flock owned by Arthur Franklin, were killed last week by dogs and many maimed last Thursday evening, heard his sheep running and obtaining his shotgun went out to the pasture, where the sheep were feeding from a large black dog. The dog had bitten several sheep and was about to attack a good stock at the dog and killed the animal.

Farmers are finding that the ground is too dry to plough and many districts are without water, because of the unusual dry, clear weather.

The Lutheran Ladies' Aid meeting was held at Fred Brunzel's last week Tuesday, afternoon and evening. A large crowd in the evening as well as afternoon attended and a goodly sum added to the treasury.

Mrs. Electa Savage and Ella Morgan are spending the week with Mrs. Avis Brown in Center.

CONSIDER REMOVING DAM THAT CONNECTS RIVERS TO CANAL

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 8.—Maj. H. E. Ferguson, U. S. government engineer for the Wisconsin district, has under consideration the advisability of removing a six foot dam and is continuing of the canal which connects the Fox and Wisconsin rivers near Portage. The matter was brought to the attention of the government by William Bonmar, a farmer, living near Portage, who declares that the dam causes high water and that many acres of otherwise valuable farm land near Portage are flooded.

START DRAINAGE WORK TO RECLAIM SWAMP LAND

Washburn, Wis., Nov. 9.—Work was started today on a monster drainage project through which about 20,000 acres of land may be reclaimed. The work is being done under the new state law which requires owners of the land to pay for the cost of the work. The land is a rich, black loam and is located near the headwaters of the White River. The main work will be near the village of Grandview in Bayfield county.

WILSON'S VIEWS.

Despite the fact that certain newspapers published in Germany announce the address of President Wilson in New York last week, as a direct slap at persons of foreign birth in the United States, and a reply to the vote of the November election at which the voters in the states where elections were held showed their disapproval of his methods, the average American approves of the President's utterances and believes he has struck the right note.

"Hyphen Peril to America" is a good name for the President's scholarly address and some of the salient points in his talk may be summed up in the following paragraphs:

"The only things within our own borders that have given us grave concern in recent months has been that voices have been raised in America protesting to be the voices of Americans which were not indeed and in truth Americans, which spoke alien sympathies, which came from men who loved other countries better than they loved America; men who were partisans of other causes than that of America and had forgotten that their chief and only allegiance was to the great government under which they lived. These voices have not been many, but they have been very loud and very clamorous. They have proceeded from a few who were bitter and who were grievously misled."

"The vast majority of those who have come to take advantage of her (America's) hospitality have united their spirits with hers as well as their fortunes. These men who speak alien sympathies are not their spokesmen, but are the spokesmen of small groups whom it is high time the nation should call to reckoning."

"The chief thing necessary in America is that that real voice of the nation should send forth unmistakably and in majestic volume, in the deep unison of a common, unhesitating national feeling. I do not doubt that upon the first occasion, upon the first opportunity, upon the first definite challenge, that voice will speak forth in tones which no man can doubt and with command which no man dare gainsay or resist."

"There is another danger that we should guard against. We should rebuke not only manifestations of racial feeling here in America, where there should be none, but also every manifestation of religious and sectarian antagonism. It does not become America that within her borders, every man is free to follow the dictates of his conscience and worship God as he pleases, man should raise the cry of church against church. To do that is to strike at the very spirit and heart of America."

"Come, let us renew our allegiance to America, conserve her strength in its purity, make her chief among those who serve mankind, self-reverenced, self-commanded, mistress of all forces of quiet counsel, strong above all others in good will and the might of invincible justice and right."

A WOMAN'S SPHERE.

Mrs. Ella Flagg Young has resigned as superintendent of Chicago's schools. Her career in this office has excited interest, partly because this is largely a new field for women's work. Women nearly monopolize public school teaching. But when it comes to the teaching of the men seem to get these better paid positions.

A man who has been long service on a school committee in another town remarked recently that selecting a school superintendent is the hardest proposition his board ever faced. The moment a vacancy occurred, the letters of application fairly rained down on them. They were dogged at their homes and offices by candidates in person.

Many of these candidates, he continued, had seen little service as superintendents. In frequent cases they were teachers who had had no great success, but had taken a notion to try a superintendency in hope of better fortune. They all bring glowing testimonials. If careful investigation is made at the scene of their previous efforts, their record may look quite different. Lacking such investigation, appointments are often made, the results of which are disappointing.

The position calls for some exceptional gifts. Irrate parents must be soothed down, taxpayers must be pleased by economy, and politicians who want jobs for friends must be thwarted. It is no bed of roses.

Many brainy women are teaching for low pay. It is surprising that more of them do not fit themselves for supervisory positions that would bring better salaries. The difficulties are of course serious. But women's tact and quick intuition would be peculiarly helpful. Mrs. Young may prove to have been one of the pioneers in a field that eventually may largely be controlled by women.

PRESAGES VICTORY.

Reading between the lines of the election returns of a week ago the republican leaders have cause to rejoice. The results of the off-year elections are most gratifying to the republicans, who see in them complete confirmation of their belief that 1916 will be marked by a general republican landslide. Wherever the voters had an opportunity to express themselves they proved that they were too intelligent to be deceived by the temporary prosperity which is resulting from huge war orders and that they keenly appreciate that there can be no safe and enduring prosperity until the machinery of the government is once more in the hands of those who are sound on the tariff question and competent to handle the financial affairs of the nation. Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Kentucky, Pennsylvania and Ohio all demonstrated that the voters appreciate the importance of getting back on safe ground and afforded abundant reason for the high hopes which the republican leaders are entertaining.

WILSON VS. HUERTA.

The New York World, which, by reason of its enthusiastic support of the administration is generally accurate regarding the President's plans, announces that President Wilson is seeking some method whereby he can surrender ex-President Huerta to Carranza, that he may be executed for the murder of Madero. Of course, the Constitution prohibits extradition for political crimes, but "The World" declares that "because of the enormity of the crime" a way may be found to circumvent the constitution of the United States, which Mr. Wilson has sworn to uphold. Of course, if Carranza were to put Huerta to death his punishment for defying Mr. Wilson's order to abdicate and get out of Mexico would be so complete that even a change of administration at Washington could not undo it.

Thousands of visitors attended the "Made in Janesville" exhibit at the auditorium last week and appreciated what Janesville manufacturing plants have to offer. General opinion is that President Wilson hit the keynote when he gave his talk of national preparedness. Perhaps it is a costly experiment at first, but it is wiser to spend the money now than be bankrupt later when the time comes.

In Serbia the women and children are fighting side by side with the men while in four eastern states the women were refused the right to even go to the polls and vote, and ordered to stay home by the men who fight out elections by the ballot.

With Bryan and Roosevelt and Taft eliminated from presidential possibilities and lots of other favorite sons bound to take in their lightning rods it is not going to be such a spectacular campaign after all unless the unforeseen happens.

Bryan still adheres to his old policy of the nation's virtue being its great strength, which is really most commendatory, but still unsatisfactory when it comes to produce results.

Crooked Lake.

When one goes on a little outing to a pleasant summer cottage by the side of an inland lake, one doesn't expect to wake up the next morning to find the lake cutting ice, but that is what happened.

When we arrived the weather was so hot we ran around the island in our B. V.'s looking for a cool spot. The next morning the milkman drove over from the mainland in a cutter and delivered the milk.

There are some great fish in that lake. So Bill told us, and he owns the binnacle, too. Where must be some in there, because the eldest resident says he can't remember when anybody ever took one out.

Bill told us we could stand right on the shore and cast for bass, and he was absolutely correct about it. We know, because we tried it. We stood right on the shore and cast for bass not only once, but thirty or forty times.

But we were not without fish. Oh, no! We found four cans of salmon in the cottage. We were a party of very clever young men and had a pause while the cook threw the browned potatoes up in the air to turn them over. Someone asked him where the B. & L. was and he turned responded to the question gravitation, missed the skillet by two feet and slid gracefully down the cook's back and under the ice box. The cook said what he needed was non-skid shoes, but the cook's shirt was ruined.

One of the party, naming no names, got excited and drank about a half pint of maple syrup by mistake. The incident happened, of course, but the damned stuff cooks so much alike when a person is in a hurry it seems as though they ought to be compelled by law to change the color of the maple syrup. The victim is slowly recovering at his home in this city.

Bill told us to go still fishing. We didn't. We went still hunting, but we couldn't find the still. A kind-hearted farmer unconsciously contributed a couple of chickens, and placing these out with the potatoes that went under the ice box we did fairly well.

The cottage is equipped with a stove something like the furnace of an old-fashioned locomotive, the kind that used to throw slabs out of the smokestack. There were four members of our party. Three of them were engaged twenty-three hours a day splitting and carrying wood and stove. The fourth was so strong in the stove that we lost three hats, a sweater, a black leather bag and three boxes of poker chips. They left us in need of poker chips all over that township the most of Sunday afternoon.

Nobody had suggested anything of the sort, you know, but when we got there, one of the party asked: "Did anybody bring any cards?" The first one to reply said he had brought five decks, the second man brought brought seven and the third man had brought four. The man who inquired had brought none.

MILITARY SYSTEM FOR DEFENSE IS URGED AT SESSION

Secretary Breckinridge of War Department Speaks at National Guard Association Convention.

San Francisco, Nov. 9.—National defense, founded upon such a system as the administration's proposed continental army, offers the only possible avenue of escape from compulsory military service for all citizens and its attendant evils, Assistant Secretary Breckinridge of the war department declared today, addressing the annual convention of the National Guard Association.

"In the first year," said Mr. Breckinridge, "we have seen all the manifold resources of nations welded into one will for the waging of war on a scale never before witnessed in history. If the liberties of republics are to be maintained their military resources must be adequately maintained in military strength not only in the history of our country, a settled and permanent military policy is proposed for the nation."

Those are those who say that it will not work. The answer is that it will have to work. And furthermore, that if it will not work, then nothing adequate can be had except under the compelling hand of a militarism that none of us desires to contemplate.

"I say to you that this proposed military policy, imperfect if it be, is the product of earnest patriots on whom our constitution and the laws have placed such a scheme. They have done their best. I appeal for your patriotic support, for if this result, which is the product of so much labor, of such industry, of such sacrifice, of such sacrifice, which has received the imprimatur of the president, of the heads of the legislative military committees and of the sober opinion of the press of the country, is to be abandoned, then we have chaos, inaction and the continuing compromise of the safety of the republic."

Urges Support.

In opening remarks, Secretary Breckinridge read a letter from Secretary Garrison, regretting the latter's inability to attend the convention and urging support for the war department's defense plans.

"Those interested in proper military preparation and precaution," the letter said, "have an unprecedented opportunity to accomplish something of great value to the country."

"We must all assist in feeling we have concerning non-essential public spirit and our patriotism by getting together on a common ground for a viewpoint on the military preparedness assistance for results."

"I stand ready to do this, and I feel an abiding confidence that you also do."

"Being thus actuated by the right spirit and working together to good effect, the right end, we may rest assured that success will be merited and achieved."

Secretary Breckinridge paid high tribute to the spirit that has kept the National Guard alive and active and built it up to an organization of 129,000 strong, despite public apathy toward the question of military preparedness in days of peace.

"Ever since the Spanish war began," he said, "there has been a group of men, unselfish, persistent, energetic and always season and out of season, have been working for the benefit of the American public the now apparent need for expansion and improvement of the armed forces of the nation."

Today as national guardians we claim the credit that is due to the guard for nursing and keeping alive in this country an essential and reasonable military spirit and appreciation of the truth of military history when they were most needed."

Swiss System.

In outlining the gigantic task of working out an adequate military policy for the nation, the speaker said the Swiss military system was not adaptable to American needs, as the federal government could not control the school system of the country and the constitution forbade the raising of troops while the Australian system would have taken too long a time to turn out trained soldiers. Faced with these problems, he added the originators of the policy had fallen back upon what the president had defined as "a citizenry trained and accustomed to arms" and always ready to take the field.

This, he said, was the theory which was founded the plan to organize a continental army of 400,000 men.

Secretary Breckinridge indicated that a new division of the general staff probably would be created to handle the affairs of the continental army, although many details of the administration would remain under commanders of territorial departments of the regular army. These departments, he said, would be further subdivided with states as a territorial unit of administration and by divisions as tactical units.

PICTURES GREATER AND NEWER EUROPE WHEN PEACE COMES

Franklin K. Lane Gives Address Before State Association at Raleigh, N. C. Last Night.

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 9.—A new and greater Europe growing out of the war now raging, with the peoples of the warring nations coming at last to a realization of the real liberty America gained so long ago was pictured tonight by the Secretary of the Interior, Franklin K. Lane, in an address before the State Literary and Historical Association of North Carolina last night.

"One half of the world is at war today," said the Secretary. "We look with horror upon the inhumanity of human nature and say to ourselves: 'Is this all that Christianity has brought?' Have we made no further progress than to make possible this reversion to the days of Attila? What has become of that sweet song of the brotherhood of man? Was it but a spiritual opiate sung to deaden the soul of a brutal world? Whither has flown that sense of outrage against injustice, that now die by the million because a prince was killed in Serbia?"

"But these are the words of an unending despair. Surely our memories have not failed us. We cannot look back, look through this blinding storm of fire and see the Europe that was, and that will be again. Then there was to be seen a pillar of fire sending the multitude—England trying to regain her lands for her people—Germany threatened with a transfer of political power from the east to the west—Russia slowly emerging from the middle ages with her groping Douma—France, la belle France, gentle, gracious, glorious France, living out the philosophy in incorporated in the first ten lines of our own Declaration of Independence."

"Europe may burn up. Her people may be blasted by bankruptcy. Her national lines may be made to follow new channels. Her industries may be buried. Her sons may fall and the blood and the brain of many an unknown Tolstoi, Beethoven, Pasteur or Darwin may fertilize her shell-torn fields. She may serve up for a day new standards of national greatness. But these, all these, cannot destroy the passionate purpose of her people to own themselves, to find themselves and to decide for themselves what chains they will wear and what sacrifices they will make. For chains and sacrifices must be; these mean social life, and only the anarchist dream of a life without restraints. But Europe knows that it may have what we Americans long ago gained, that degree of freedom in which sacrifices is made—consciously and proudly made—for those and to those with whom we have common interest. And this is liberty."

AT THE MAJESTIC.

A Drama of Vivid Ideas.

The deep psychology and the wide views which the Reverend Cyrus Townsend Brady has injected into "The Island of Regeneration" have been so clearly brought out in the screen version of the story that the production in its entirety acents of a distinct and keen judgment of human emotions. For the reason that the picture is so well thought out, so well handled, both technically and dramatically, and because it contains such a wealth of ideas, it seems certain that success will follow its exhibition in any theatre.

Such well chosen locations, such gorgeous light effects, such pleasing and suitable photography have rarely been equaled. The desert landscape scene on the desert island is superbly done, the water scenes are all artistic and the island in tranquility is beautiful with its southern vegetation and uncivilized atmosphere.

The story concerns Katherine Brenton, an idealist, who, believing she has found true companionship in Langford, who has been a sailor, and who has been on his yacht, but before long the brute in Langford asserts itself and the consequences are that Katherine leaves the island in the dead of night in a motor boat. She reaches the shore where John Charnock has spent most of his life in solitude. He is wild and she is confronted with the task of educating him.

Edith Stewart, who plays the role of Katherine Brenton with a feeling and understanding which is at once magnetic and expressive. Her actions in teaching the man the ways of civilization are truly convincing and wonderful. She is earnest when alone as her caperings in the shady pool innocently assert. Antonio Moreno is ideally suited to the part of John Charnock. He is a brute, and his facial expressions when he meets the girl, when he is learning civilized ways and when at last he discovers that the love he is clear and exceptionally carried out. Randolph Drew should not be forgotten as the repentant Langford, nor should Harry Davenport, the director, the man really responsible for the picture.

"The Island of Regeneration" comes to the Majestic on Thursday and Friday.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

The Myers Theatre for its attraction on Friday, Nov. 19, will have the famous comedy, "Lady Luxur," the book and lyrics of which are by Rida Johnson Young, with its music by William Schroeder.

Florence Webster, who was featured in "The Naughty Marietta," has the title role and the balance of the cast includes such well known players as Arthur Albro, Forrest Huff, Joseph W. Ford, Fred von Busch, Gipsy Dale, Sam J. Burton, Eddie Moran, Emily Fitzroy and the stunning Casino girls, dazzlingly arrayed in gowns that are Lady Duff Gordon's very latest.

The story of "Lady Luxur" concerns an orphan girl, Eloise Van Cuyler, who has been raised by her old uncle and guardian, in ignorance of the outside world. Eloise has had a very happy life, and on the day that she attains her majority she decides to emerge from her chrysalis state and grow butterfly wings. Much to the disgust of her uncle who has led a life of luxury, she decides to do so. She engages a Russian dancer to entertain her guests, a chaperon who has in her entourage a fortune-hunting Count, and an entirely new set of servants. The place is over-run with guests and the uncle has to sleep in the boat-house. He enlists the aid of Sam Warren, a young Texan rancher, who is in love with Eloise, and they plot to disgust her with new friends by making her think that her fortune has been dissipated, when they know that she will be deserted. The uncle leaves a note that he has squandered his fortune and disappears. With him disappears the jewels of the dancer, though the uncle is not responsible, they having been taken inadvertently by the opera Count, who mistakes the jewel box of the dancer for the medicine case containing his ever necessary throat spray.

Finally when everyone has been accused of the theft, and Eloise realizes that her position is a false one, the uncle returns and explains everything and the curtains fall on a happy ensemble.

An augmented orchestra under the personal direction of Edmond De Novellis, a conductor of national repute, will render the twenty-two hitting melodies, among them being "Dream On My Princess," "Longing For You," "When the Stars Appear," "Pick a Pickin'," "Kiss Me Once More," "The Weather Man" and others.

AT THE APOLLO.

With Edward Abeles tonight at the Apollo will be seen a strong and notable cast supporting him in "Ready Money," a five-reel Lasky-Paramount production which is being brought back for its second appearance.

The cast includes such prominent stars as Theodore Roberts, Beesie Barricade, Billy Miller, Dick Leonard, Monroe Salisbury, Hode Mullally, Jane Darwell, Florence Dagmar, Frederick Montague, James Neil and Sidney Deane.

AT THE APOLLO.

Walker Whiteside Coming in "The Melting Pot."

Never in the history of the Apollo Theatre since it has been occupied by the silent drama has it been occupied by a more acceptable offering than the popular photo play, "The Melting Pot," which will open on Tuesday of next week.

It has enjoyed capacity business since opening at the Fine Arts theatre in Chicago. It has not been found wanting in any respect, excelling in intensely dramatic situations, photographic effects, exciting and thrilling scenes, and, above all, in the appeal of its patriotic theme, which received the plaudits of the many thousands of spectators. Walker Whiteside, who plays the part of the immigrant, has gained for him a world-wide reputation as a screen comedian, will be seen tomorrow by large, laughing, side-splitting audiences at the Apollo Theatre in that company's dramatic production, "The Melting Pot," by George C. Shedd.

From the very opening of this extraordinary feature, John Barrymore impresses his audience that he is the supreme as a screen comedian, but that in more dramatic moments

AT THE APOLLO.

John Barrymore a Screen as "The In-corrugible Dukane."

John Barrymore, whose tremendous success in the Famous Players Film Company's production of "The Man From Mexico," "Are You a Mason?" and "The Dictator" has gained for him a world-wide reputation as a screen comedian, will be seen tomorrow by large, laughing, side-splitting audiences at the Apollo Theatre in that company's dramatic production, "The Melting Pot," by George C. Shedd.

From the very opening of this extraordinary feature, John Barrymore impresses his audience that he is the supreme as a screen comedian, but that in more dramatic moments he measures favorably with any of the dramatic screen artists as well.

AT THE PRINCESS.

"Heritage" with Ella Hall and Robt. Leonard every fan in the land will always welcome a Universal multiple reel with the clever people in the cast. This feature will be seen tonight at the Princess.

THE FORTUNE HUNTER IS PLEASING COMEDY

William Elliott Appears in Well-Known Stage Success.

"The Fortune Hunter" which opened a three-day run at the Majestic yesterday, is a very satisfying type of photoplay. There are no train wrecks or other big thrills in it, and there is no cheap slap-stick; it is clean, wholesome comedy all through, and delightful.

William Elliott of course does fine work in the title role, but high praise should also be given charming Ethel Clayton, who plays opposite him. All of the characters fit nicely into their parts, and the atmosphere of the life in the village is skillfully maintained. The amusing situations throughout the picture lead up to a particularly delightful ending, which is a happy father comes out with an umbrella to protect the embracing lovers from the shower of which they are entirely unconscious.

"HEART OF JENNIFER" A PRETTY PICTURE

Hazel Dawn Gives a Very Pleasing Touch to a Good Photoplay.

It was a pleasant picture to see Hazel Dawn in the leading role of "The Heart of Jennifer," a five-reel Paramount picture presented at the Apollo yesterday. The picture itself was a pretty picturesque one, full of beautiful landscape settings, graceful trees and buildings, and excellent in composition and photographic duplication.

James Kirkwood played opposite Miss Dawn and also to him deserves the credit of directing the play. It is such directors as he that give the artistic faculty to the Famous Players company.

THEATRE IN LONDON OWNED BY WOMEN AND OPERATED BY WOMEN

London, Nov. 9.—(By Mail.)—A theatre owned and operated by women is London's newest wartime feature. Stagehands, scene shifters and other male workers at the Kingsway ended one by one until the playhouse closed. It is now reopened by the proprietress, Miss Lena Ashwell, and mere men plays no part in its conduct except as an actor or in the audience. A comely young woman, well known in London stage circles, is stage "manager." The limelights are worked by girls who sit aloft amidst the upper scenes clad in minish, gossamer and linen coats. The electric switchboard operator is likewise feminine.

All the scene shifters wear skirts and have always done so. A uniformed female ticket taker stands at the door while the ticket offices are devoid of men. A woman's orchestra furnishes the music under the footlights. There is even a woman press agent.

GERALDINE FARRAR COMING IN CARMEN

Famous Prima Donna to Be Seen Here in Her Best Operatic Role.

Geraldine Farrar, the celebrated prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera company, is soon to be seen in Evansville in her picturized version of her most famous opera, "Carmen," which the Apollo has secured for the near future.

This is the photoplay production which has just closed a two weeks' engagement at the new Strand Theatre in Chicago, and which the critics all said was the most wonderful thing ever presented in picture plays.

Miss Farrar made her debut to popular dramatic audiences in Symphony Hall, in Boston, recently in this production, which was produced under the personal direction of Cecil De Mille for the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play company.

The version of "Carmen" used in this Paramount picture is founded on the story by Prosper Merimee, and shows Carmen as a half-wild, fascinating creature, a gray by birth—and living with a band of smugglers near the coast of Spain.

Miss Farrar says it is the best thing she has ever done. Her voice has been immortalized on record. Now her wonderful acting itself has been preserved for generations to come.

"Wonderful!" he said at last. "It is past belief! And how, for the love of heaven, did you ever wind up that commissioner to put his own head in the noose by giving you those proofs?" Miss Ordway looked away down the fast darkening slough, and there was that in her narrowed, smiling eyes which had Sandry seen, would have shocked him from her.

"He didn't give," she said oddly; "I took."

And something in the speech silenced the man. "Sometimes," went on this clever woman, "one will take—providing there is a great enough incentive. I had a great incentive."

She ceased, waiting, and against his will Sandry supplied the question.

"What?"

"You," said Miss Ordway in a whisper.

With her pretty, inimitable gesture of daring she put up a hand, laid it against his cheek and drew his face toward her.

"Boy," she said in a curiously choked tone, as if emotion dominated her, "oh, boy! With your youth and your eagerness, your inherent strength and your losing battle! Did you not know that you were as fire to me?"

Under Orders to Shoot at the First Sign of Trouble.

She slipped off the log and stood before him, her hands clasped across her breast and all her magnificent beauty a lure in the spring dusk.

"Ah!" she laughed recklessly, "you have set me flaming, like a line of fire at night! And I care nothing that I tell you—there is no law for a genius!"

And, turning swiftly, she went down the slope, away from him, leaving him as she had done once before with his head whirling under the spell of her beauty and her daring. But this time she had left far more, for within him there surged and roiled emotions that defied control—joy and triumph and savage desire to even scores with the man who had so cruelly pressed him, relief at the prospect of saving so easily his East Bred and his future; and, bursting through the rest, the tangle of her words, the amazed comprehension of them.

The days that followed were hard ones for the young owner of the Dillingworth. He did not see that he had taken the silent little girl of the hills, and that the dominant, clever woman of the world had taken him. Yet such were the facts in the vague, half-formed shape that affairs had assumed.

With a splendid tact Miss Ordway kept away from him, presenting at such times as they chanced to meet a serene poise that was as charming as her abandon had been that night by the railway. On the other hand, Siletz watched him with troubled eyes. There was that in features and voice that frightened her, as a loving woman is ever frightened when trouble rides the shoulder of the beloved.

Therefore one night soon after Sandry's talk with Miss Ordway, Siletz followed him as he went to the office after supper. It was a black night, and Sandry was not aware of her presence until a touch fell on his shoulder, almost as light and soft as that of the mist upon his face.

"Sandry," said Siletz. He turned swiftly and all the vacillations of his heart seemed to culminate suddenly in a desire to take her in his arms.

"Yes?" he said, yielding to the influence of the misty darkness and the nearness of this girl who typified the wild so alluringly, "The Night Wind breathes upon my heart. Why is it, Little Siletz?"

"Why—why," stammered Siletz, "I hardly know. Yet—there is something."

She fell silent a moment, standing beside him.

"The winds of God are heavy on my soul, Sandry," she said at last, earnestly, "and they tell me that you are sad. What can I do—oh, what can I do to help?"

There was in her voice the simple cry of a sympathy so intense that it was anguish, and Sandry's lips tightened in the darkness.

For a heady moment he could scarce resist the bidding of the lawless thrill that she was ever capable of sending through him, to take her into his arms as he had done that day when she beheld the sea. But a tardy thought of Miss Ordway shut his hands upon themselves and steadied his voice.

He put his hands upon her shoulders and turned her round.

"Go back to Ma Daily, child," he said, but his voice had fallen to a whisper, a whisper that was a caress, laden as heavily with wistful sadness as a whisper might be, "and don't fret. I am all right."

Without a word, obedient to him as the primal woman ever is to man, Siletz went away in the night toward the cook-shack.

As she passed up the path she almost brushed the garments of Poppy Ordway, standing in rigid silence, her hands shut in the folds of her gown, her rose lips ashen, her eyes strained wide.

"Fool! Fool! Fool!" the woman was thinking in a rage of passion. "Why didn't I suspect? She is something to him—she has her charm. There is danger in her to me—oh, Sandry, you stupid, simple heart!"

For Poppy Ordway had heard the caress of that lowered voice. The new passion in her took flight, and a furious, choking rage sent the blood hot upon her heart.

The next morning he found upon his window-ledge a handful of fern and a spray of tiny, yellow, waxlike flowers that were beginning to show where the little streams tore down the mountains, lining their rocky beds. He took them in and put them away in a drawer among his papers, silent voice of a sympathy that was as delicate as it was strong.

That morning when Poppy Ordway encountered Siletz the bright smile she gave her covered a sudden hatred that had sprung, full grown, from a man's low whisper; and the bad times that followed for the girl had their inception then.

CHAPTER XVI.

The Big Raft.

On the fourteenth of March the wheezy tug pulled the great, brown cigar-shaped monster that meant so much to Sandry and the fortunes of the Dillingworth from its moorings out to the narrow, deep neck of the bay that would take it to the sea. Sandry for the first time in his life felt the slow, sliding motion as the great oval form responded to the screeching tug and the ebb tide.

On board with Sandry were Daily and eight Indians, all armed and waiting for anything that might develop. But Hampden had no notion of meeting John Daily in his present mood and it seemed as if all was to go smoothly. As the raft drew majestically abreast of the mill at Toledo the Yellow Pines owner was conspicuous on the dock, though he did not appear to see anything beyond the pile of raw, bright lumber he was marking. His sordid face wore a sardonic grin.

"Wait till yer damned little gasoline bobtail gets down to 'er water!" he said under his breath, "jest wait!"

And just as the raft swung slowly into the straight canal-like mouth of the bay, which it almost filled, the little tug faltered, coughed, sent up a protesting flutter and was dead as death.

The Portland scaler was running it, and he spent two blasphemous hours alternately working at the engine and shouting to the men on the raft.

"It's a mighty good thing we got her headed out before this happened," said Daily, "or we'd never a got her turned straight in God's world. I bet Hampden's done something to 'er tug. She hain't never gone dead before."

As the strong outrunning tide drew them along the little town receded, the low banks gave way to the trees, and the hills rose sharply about them, ending, as the waterway cut through the ridges.

Sandry saw what an ideal holding the Dillingworth was, with its unbounded revenue of forest, its deep natural harbor, its strong tide suction for the rafts.

The scaler loosed his useless cable, worked the drifting tug to the side with a couple of heavy paddles, finally snag her clear, lassoed a passing snag and let the raft go by.

"Tell them I'll be up by train tomorrow," he called, "and I'll send someone down for the tug with a dray."

"John," said Sandry, "it's a wonder Hampden didn't do something surer to hinder us—jam the bay with logs or tie us up some way."

"Might, only I've had John Teeter, pole an' Klamath Sam walkin' 'th' shores fer five days—an' they're the two worst Siwash on 'er reservation. Hampden knows they're workin' fer Siletz, an' that when I said shoot or cut they'd shoot or cut—of it took four years an' a dark night to do it."

That first day drifted by very swiftly, soft and sunny between showers, and by four o'clock the ebb of the tide, grown slower and slower, had ceased altogether. Daily and the rest tied up the raft, head and tail on both sides, using heavy steel ropes and chains, to which they gave plenty of slack. They cooked supper ashore and Sandry thought he had never tasted better fare.

Afterward they lay about the fire all together, smoking, and only the silence of the Siletz marked the line of color. Triumph filled the heart of the young financier and his last drowsy thoughts were of the steamer that was even now plowing down from Portland to meet them, the huge check that would follow his delivery of the logs—how he would lift a certain mortgage of the load that hung upon the Dillingworth, its greatest menace in point of time.

He waited to see the heavy chains drawn taut, to hear the mass of timbers creaking and grumbling as it strained upstream, and knew that the tide was in. The Siwash cook waked the men by moonlight for breakfast. They must be ready to take advantage of the first motion toward the sea.

The casting loose, the slow start, the moving of the night shores—Sandry wished Miss Ordway might see it—it might be a bit of local color in the little south room. His mind went over that little room. He saw the stand with the ancient Bible. He shuddered a bit with the night chill as he saw again the words, "Oh, Ad-salom! My son, my son!"

Those were the last words that the mind of the Easterner were to know for many days. The nose of the raft where he was standing suddenly rose under him like a thing of life. The night opened, flame shot upward from the dark waters, immeasurable sound smote his eardrums to silence, pain that was unendurable stretched and tore his limbs. He sailed away into night and the world was not.

When the thing was over John Daily picked himself up from where he had been blown clear of the raft and the water, landing in a tangle of blueberry vines, and screamed a curse at the serene heavens.

"Oh, God damn his soul to hell!" he cried, half after the manner of a prayer; "he's blown her up at last!"

In the awful silence that fell in the first moments there set up a great groaning of the timbers. The wrecked and opened prow of the raft slewed to the right, jammed into the shore, and was holding the rest, while the strong tide urged it hard upon itself.

Above it Daily lifted his voice and called his Indians, and there was anguish in his heart.

"Kootah! Kootah! Memmloo!" From here and there voices answered, some far, some near, and presently figures crept fearfully into the moonlight from the matted ferns, gathering about the foreman.

Here one dragged an injured ankle, another stanch the blood from a ragged scalp with his hands, and there one wavered drunkenly from the fall he had got, but all eight accounted for themselves.

"Boys," said Daily tensely, "all who can swim get into the water quick! Sandry was standin' alone at her nose. It's a hundred to one he's done for!"

No one asked a question, the Indians accepting with their pathetic fatalism this disaster which would have set the tongues of white men a-ling.

He was one of the smart men who like to show their cleverness.

"See me make him look small," he said as the beggar approached. Then he listened solemnly to the tale of hard luck.

"That's the same old story you

"Is it?" was the reply. "Praps I did, praps I did," he admitted, "but I had quite forgotten meeting you for the moment. I was doing seven days last week, and there was such a lot of us, you see."

Money-Making Ways of Using Want Ads

No. 14—How to "Trade Talents" Through Want Ads

Maybe you can sing, but would like to learn how to play some instrument. Perhaps you understand automobiles, but do not know mechanical drawing. Perhaps you can do a clog or fancy dance, but wish to learn Spanish. People who can do things usually want to be able to do other things. Why not trade with somebody?

The Want Ad will help you and the cost is very small. Here are a few ways in which you can trade ability:

FIRST WANT AD CAPABLE PIANO INSTRUCTOR wishes to learn German. Will trade lessons on piano for lessons in German. Let me hear from you.	SECOND WANT AD I WILL TEACH YOU HOW TO DO china painting if you can teach me how to play a piano or violin. Can spare any five evenings each week.
THIRD WANT AD A SUCCESSFUL DRAFTSMAN wishes to teach his trade in exchange for dancing lesson. Will exchange references. Address	FOURTH WANT AD A CHROMIST WILL EXCHANGE lessons in practical chemistry for instructions in advertising. Expert and will give highest references. Address

Practical Knowledge is the Logical Result

In more than 90% of the instances, you will receive the most practical kind of instructions, and it is more than likely that you will be able to give the same kind. Many a man and woman who has been unable to pay for dependable knowledge has been able to trade for it. Another advantage of trading instruction is that both persons receive the exclusive attention of their instructors; something that no school could afford to give.

Used in this way,

The Want Ad is Everybody's Schoolhouse!

Married Life on $80 a Month

By MRS. E. L. LEONARD

"I stopped to have you see if I looked all right. I am going to the office to see John and show off my new dress." Molly Sumner was pink with pleasure, the well-dressed and it had been an increasingly rare pleasure of late years.

"No one would ever guess the dress was not made for you," said Olive, "and that shall be our secret."

"I have thought of a way that I can say you are the dress," Molly said, "I cannot do plain sewing decently can I?"

"All right," said Olive, "I'll let you embroider one skirt just to have some of your work on things I love, but—"

"I insist on doing all the flannels," persisted Molly, as she went down the walk.

"Come back this way and tell me what your husband said," called Olive as she came in the door.

"All right," said Molly, "he said he had never been to the office before, and had to inquire her way to her husband's desk at the cashier's window."

"So this is the wife of the man whose wages are garnished for debt, is it?" was the mental comment of Tyler as he watched the stylish little figure out of the room. "That is something worth calling Joyce's attention to." His lips compressed in a sinister smile.

Molly gave a comprehensive look in Julia Osgood's direction as she crossed the room to her husband's desk.

"John," said Molly in a low tone, "I thought I'd come in and show you my new dress." John looked up from his work with a start.

"Papa, it is time to go home?" said little Jack in a tone distinctly suggestive of the queen room. All eyes turned toward John's desk.

"Hush, dear," whispered Molly, "seeing a black frown gathering on her husband's face."

"You do well to come down here to advertise your extravagance. It will be a nice reminder to Joyce. He believes it dishonest to spend money except on necessities when in debt, and he is watching me to see whether I keep me in his employ or not," he exclaimed in a fierce whisper.

"I haven't been extravagant," began Molly, winking back the tears of cruel disappointment. "Come, Jack, we'll go now," and she returned and left the office.

"Was that your wife?" asked Julia when she could make an errand in his part of the room.

"Yes."

"Why didn't you introduce her? She is a stylish little body," continued Julia admiringly.

"Do you happen to remember that I am in deep financial trouble? Well, do you see why?" He made an expressive gesture with his hands and shoulders.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl nineteen years of age and have been keeping steady company with a fellow about thirty for three years.

We were engaged to be married until about two months ago, when he met with a severe accident just after moving from that town.

The accident left him in a deformed condition. He wrote me and told me all about it and said that his heart was broken, as he didn't think he would marry him in that condition.

He said that he didn't care now whether he lived or died.

I love the fellow so much that I can't help but be happy with another man. If you please advise me whether it would be best to marry a man in that condition or not I'll thank you from the bottom of my heart. My mother and sister both tell me to drop him, but they don't realize how I love him or they would say differently. He has a fine position and works now that he has got over the accident.

I think you are too young, girls, to be sure that you love this man and can love no other. You ought to be at least twenty-five before you decide to marry a cripple eleven years older than yourself. Write to him and be as close a friend and comforter as you can, and then in a few years if you still love him, marry him. Love is the great thing after all. It would be worth the price you would have to pay if you could be sure you would get it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I want to dance with a boy where they exchanged dances. He is a good enough dancer, but he doesn't like to dance very well. There were twenty dances and we exchanged six and dances with him. He had two dances with me then after that whenever we were to dance together he would excuse himself and go off, leaving me sitting alone, which was a horrible thing in my life as I did not like to dance with him. I would like him and he telephones me every day.

At the time he asked me to the dance he asked me to another, which will be next month. I accepted both. Now I don't know what to do, because I could not stand such a miserable and embarrassing time again. What can I do? I like the boy and do not want to hurt his feelings.

B.L.O.N.D.

Tell him what a miserable time you had at the last dance and say that if he will sit with you when he does not care to dance you will go. This is very rude, of course, but I think it must have been ignorance of the right thing to do.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am going to have a few girls come to my place some afternoon and would like to know what would be nice for lunch.

(2) What should we girls play? Will you please name some games and how to play them. I would like something without much running.

(3) Will they wear the side lace shoe this winter?

(4) Will green coats be worn?

(5) Is it too late to get suit now?

(6) Will velvet hats be worn all winter?

I live in the country and am fifteen years of age. ROSE EUD.

(1) Chocolate and sandwiches or chocolate and cake.

(2) Ask the girls to bring their sewing and have a thimble party. I have not space in the column to describe games.

(3) Yes.

(4) Yes.

(5) There will be days all winter that a suit can be worn, but there will be more need for a heavy coat.

(6) Yes.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

HOW ONE MAN CONQUERED HIS RHEUMATISM.

He was sixty-two years old, a prosperous merchant, but sadly crippled with what was called "chronic rheumatism." All the home doctors and all the best men for miles around had tried their hand. He had tried endless remedies to no effect. His bank account was the worse for many a trip to the noted mineral springs and health resorts; yet the "rheumatism" stuck, and he became a pessimist and smoked horrible nine-inch stogies.

Then one day he had one of those accidents that people facetiously call lucky. He had an automobile accident, and in it broke a tooth. Other wise the casualties were trifling.

The dentist strove valiantly to save that broken tooth. Unfortunately, however, it was a very bad tooth to begin with; it had a little abscess at the root, the dentist found. After some hesitation the dentist decided to draw that tooth.

He did. He cleaned out the abscess cavity and finally discharged the patient cured.

Cured?

Within two months every vestige of the patient's rheumatism had disappeared. He was the spryest young fellow in the boot and shoe trade. The broken part of it is that he didn't happen to be trying anybody's rheumatism treatment at the time.

What accounts for the cure?

The accident uncovered a septic focus—the root abscess—and when that was cleaned up, there was no more poisoning of really good blood with streptococci and other noxious cocci. Nature did the rest.

Don't steer your automobile into a lamp-post. It might not work so well in your case. An easier way would be to have your jaws recently x-rayed. If any fool appears in the X-ray, have them cleaned up forthwith. It might cure your rheumatism as much good as an accident.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Do you think Manipulation.

A osteopathic physician would be of any avail for my headaches? asks Mrs. R. L.

Answer—Not if the headaches happen to be caused by adenoids or bromitis or a brain tumor. However, if the physician can diagnose your condition accurately perhaps he could relieve you. Obviously a condition with so many different possible causes is not amenable to any one treatment.

When Arsenic is Medicine.

I am twenty-two, thin, sorrowful, anemic, nervous, appetite and frequently a victim of the thing you call coryza, although much in the open air. An old doctor advises me to take two drops of Fowler's solution of arsenic in water after each

TODAY'S BEAUTY SUGGESTIONS.

Face powder simply covers up an unattractive complexion and leaves no lasting benefits. Those who have tried a simple spumax face lotion find it much better, as it removes skin discolorations, such as freckles and tan, and makes the skin smooth, white and velvety.

This lotion is made by dissolving four ounces of spumax in one-half pint hot water, then adding two teaspoonfuls glycerin. This complexion beautifier does not rub off or show like powder, and gives a more refined appearance. It removes both shininess and sallowness, rapidly giving the skin a permanent healthy, youthful appearance.

An especially fine shampoo for this weather can be had at trifling expense by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox in a cup of hot water. Pour slowly on scalp and massage briskly. This creates a soothing, cooling lather that dissolves and removes all dandruff, excess oil and dirt. Rinsing leaves the scalp spotlessly clean, soft and pliant, while the hair takes on a glossy richness of natural color, also a fluffiness which makes it seem very much heavier than it is. After a canthrox shampoo arranging the hair is a pleasure.—Advertisement.

meal. Is it a safe venture? Answer—It is safe and, we think, good.

Household Hints

THE USEFUL MARSHMALLOW. Marshmallows are useful in emergencies.

They will keep well if put in a glass jar and placed in a dry closet. When eggs are lacking for frosting, cut marshmallows in halves and place between layers of a cake; scatter a few over top, then set cake in moderately hot oven until top is partially melted.

When there is a small section of spice cake left and more is desired in a hurry cut cake in squares size of marshmallows, place on top of each piece, place in warm oven until two heads together.

Marshmallows dropped on the top of hot cup of cocoa takes place of whipped cream; also saves time.

For novelty ice cream, use chocolate as a flavoring, and, as it freezes, stir in a quantity of quartered marshmallows.

In making fruit salad, use quartered marshmallows with pieces of sliced fruit; made this way it is not so rich and many prefer it to ordinary salad.

USES FOR RAW POTATO. To Clean a Stained Vinegar Cruet—Fill cruet with finely chopped potato skin, cork tight and let stand in a warm place for three days, then turn skins out and rinse cruet with warm water and borax.

To Clean Rusty Knives—Use a raw potato dipped in cleaning powder; it is much nicer than the unlight cleaning cloth.

To Kindle Fires—Potato parings (dried in the oven) are good to kindle fires, as they light easily.

To Clean Carpets—Grate a raw potato, rub it over the surface of the carpet and finish with a clean cloth wrung out in warm water.

To Clarify Drippings—Grate raw potato into the fat while rendering. It will absorb all impurities.

To Make Light Bread—Mash a baked potato and add to the flour.

For Corned Beef—Heat a raw potato and add to the meat.

To Clean Mud Spots From Silk—After washing thoroughly, rub soiled place with a raw potato.

When a Fern Turns Yellow, slice a raw potato and put it on top of soil. This will draw out the worms, which generally are the cause of fern leaves turning yellow.

THE TABLE. Jugged Beef—Put in a stone jar with lid, two pounds from neck, four onions, two tablespoons barley, pepper and salt, cover with water. Stand jar in hot oven for three hours. Half an hour before serving, thicken with cornstarch or flour browned. This is a cheap and tasty dish.

Spaghetti—Half pound spaghetti, one-fourth pound bacon, one pint tomatoes. Cook spaghetti twenty minutes in salt water; cut bacon into small cubes. Brown in pan, pour bacon with all the grease over spaghetti, pour in tomatoes, season with pepper and celery salt; stir and bake in moderate oven a half hour.

Turnips—Scrub turnips, slice, then hollow out center and fill with sausage meat. Bake until sausage is done, basting turnips with sausage drippings.

Scrambled Eggs—Allow one egg to each person and one for the pan. Beat yolks and whites together, add milk and pinch of salt. Cook ten minutes in double boiler. Fine and absolutely free from grease. Will agree with the most delicate stomach.

Birds' Nests—Take some good apple, peel, cut in halves and core, making a deep hole in the center of each half. Grease a baking dish with butter or drippings and lay in apples, holes upward, side by side, until dish is filled. Then fill center with a little sugar, a dash of butter and a little more sugar and cinnamon. Then bake in oven until done. This is delicious.

Ice Cream Cases—Dainty and delicious ice cream cases can be easily made by joining with icing three sugar wafers, making a triangular shaped box. Half fill these with vanilla cream and add a tablespoonful of any preserved fruit, topped with whipped cream. Grated maple sugar with a few minced walnuts is delicious over vanilla cream, as is also a sprinkling of rolled macaroons and minced almonds.

Ice Cream Without a Freezer—Take an old dishpan, fill half full of equally mixed coarse salt and finely crushed ice. Put two or three small holes in bottom of pan and place it in the sink. Put the cream in shallow pan that will fit into the dishpan, leaving enough room to pack ice around the sides. Stir with spoon until frozen. You will have frozen cream in fifteen minutes.

BRITISH NURSE EARNS RECORD IN SERVICE; KNOWS ALL BATTLEFIELDS

London, Nov. 9.—(By Mail.)—Florence Nightingale, the Second, is Nurse Borlase, the woman who knows every British battlefield in Europe. She has nursed in England, France, Flanders, Serbia and the Dardanelles and is now in London to recuperate before she goes to Russia.

On the close, mannish jacket of this elderly, grey-haired Florence Nightingale, there are two South African war medal ribbons; also Belgian, Serbian, British and French medals won in the present war.

In the South African war, Nurse Borlase was in the Siege of Ladysmith. The first gun of the European struggle found her nursing in Canada from whence she went to Flanders to nurse the Belgian wounded. Later, after a few months in France, news reached her of the sufferings of the Serbians and the ravages of typhus. Without hesitation she went to Serbia and remained until the scourge had passed.

It was after this that the British landed at Gallipoli and she journeyed to Gallipoli in time to care some of the wounded who are now veterans of that campaign. Here Nurse Borlase's health failed and she returned to London, where it is read in America she will be on her way to Russia.

SIDE TALKS

—By— EUTH CAMERON

WHY SHE WAS HAPPY.

The other day I heard one of my neighbors singing softly to herself as she sat on the porch, sewing.

You seem to be light-hearted this morning," I commented.

She lifted a bright, sweet face from her sewing and smiled at me.

"I am."

"Would it be intrusive to ask why?" Her Husband's Compliment.

She laughed. "I'm almost ashamed to tell you, and yet why should I be? My sister dropped in this morning and she told me that Harry (my neighbor's husband) told her last night at the dance that he never saw me look so well. You know Harry is one of those people who can't seem to say such things to your face. Even before we were married he seldom said we were pleased with anything I wore. So you see how much it meant. Just suppose she hadn't told me. I've been sitting here thinking of it and trying to think if I can't remember something nice someone has said about someone else so that I can tell them about it and make them happy. I do think people ought to be more careful to pass on things like that, don't you?"

With a sudden pricking of conscience I admitted that I did.

How is it with you, reader friend? Does that thought set your conscience a-pricking, too?

The Fine Art of Pasting On Compliments.

There are some people who make a fine art of passing on all the pleasant little things they hear people say of each other. I know one girl whom I seldom meet that she has not one of these delightful little second-hand compliments to slip into the conversation.

But the majority of us are careless or indifferent. We forget the pleasant word, or we don't want to take the effort to bring it into the conversation. Or perhaps we're even ungenerous enough not to enjoy hearing another praised, and to prefer to let the praise stop with ourselves.

Anyone who catches himself feeling that way (even deep down in his unconscious mind) needs to discipline himself by making himself repeat every compliment he can possibly get hold of.

One Second-Hand Thing That Is More Valuable Than First-Hand.

Most second-hand things are nowhere near so valuable as first-hand. A compliment is one of the rare exceptions to this rule. The pleasant thing that someone says of you to your face may have to be discounted a bit, but if it is said to a third person you can usually take it at its face value. People don't flatter behind your back (I except the few nasty schemers who deliberately flatter through a third person.)

If you were wealthy and could lighten other people's lives by gifts of money and beautiful things, you would take pleasure in doing so, wouldn't you?

Why not learn to take pleasure then in the gift you can give—the gift of a kind word passed on?

Make it a rule never to let a compliment or word of praise for another stop with you.

SERVANT PROBLEM SOLVED BY SCHOOL

Housewives' League of Montclair Deal With Home Problem in a Unique Manner.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Montclair, N. J., Nov. 9.—The Housewives' League of Montclair expects that a year ago this community's servant problem, that bug bear to the women of almost every one in the land, will be solved.

Much progress already has been made toward getting plenty of efficient use of help of all classes, toward standardizing the pay and the division of work for each servant.

The haphazardness of these things done away with, thinks President Mrs. Chaucey H. Marsh, the servant problem will be solved and the joke-smiths will lose one of their most lucrative sources of income.

Five hundred letters will be mailed today, in addition to the 200 already sent out, asking as many housewives a series of servant problem questions. Upon an analysis of the answers will be based the servants' standard of wages of Montclair. An analysis of the 200 answers already received shows that a girl doing housework, but no washing, for an average family of five, should get $22 to $25 a month.

"We want," said Mrs. Marsh, "as every community want, to pay a rate sufficient to attract capable, high-standard help; for by raising the standard of the servant, we will make life pleasanter for the housewife, husband, kiddies and the servants themselves."

"Since Superintendent Elias has opened the schools' domestic science classes to housewives and servants, the teachers have been swamped with students anxious to improve their cooking, sewing, etc."

Housewives may now catch their servants young and educate them to suit, without cost other than taxes that they pay anyhow, in the public schools. A co-operative servants' organization to work with the Housewives' league, may also be organized a little later.

How to Solve the Servant Problem.

- 1.—Got the School board to establish free domestic science for maids and housewives.
- 2.—Are writing 500 letters to housewives for data upon which to base a standard scale of servants' wages.
- 3.—Plan a municipal testing station for all servants, applying to housewives for work.
- 4.—Seeking to classify and standardize the work of the "one maid to a family" plan most popular.

Ideal Metal for Yachts.
Monel metal, an alloy resembling nickel, will probably replace steel and bronze for the construction of yachts. It is tougher than nickel steel, does not corrode, and retains its brightness. Aluminum, the lightest of yacht plates, lasts only a short time in contact with salt water.

New Use for Motorcycle.
A motorcycle street sweeper is a new American machine. It is mounted on a side-car chassis of peculiar design, and in front of the sweeping mechanism is a steel brush that loosens the dirt so that the broom may easily remove it.

ABE MARTIN

This has been a hard summer on our winter clothes. World peace must look like an awful big proposition to the head of the average family.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, Nov. 9, 1875.—The total amount of real estate sales for the two weeks ending today reaches $62,848.75, which is far above the average.

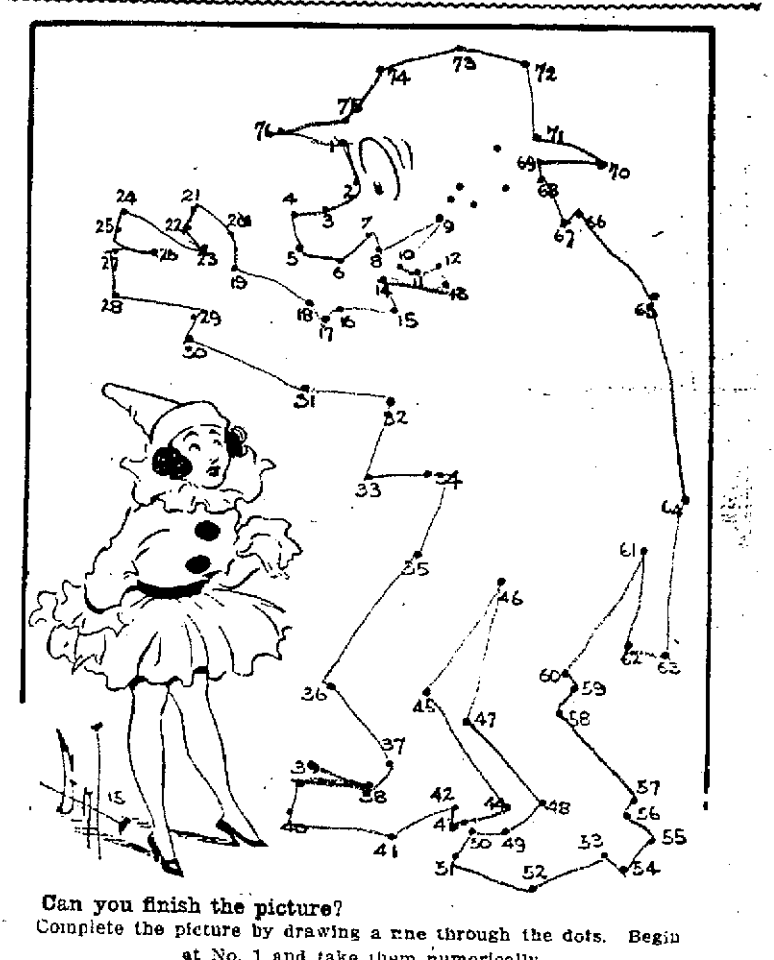

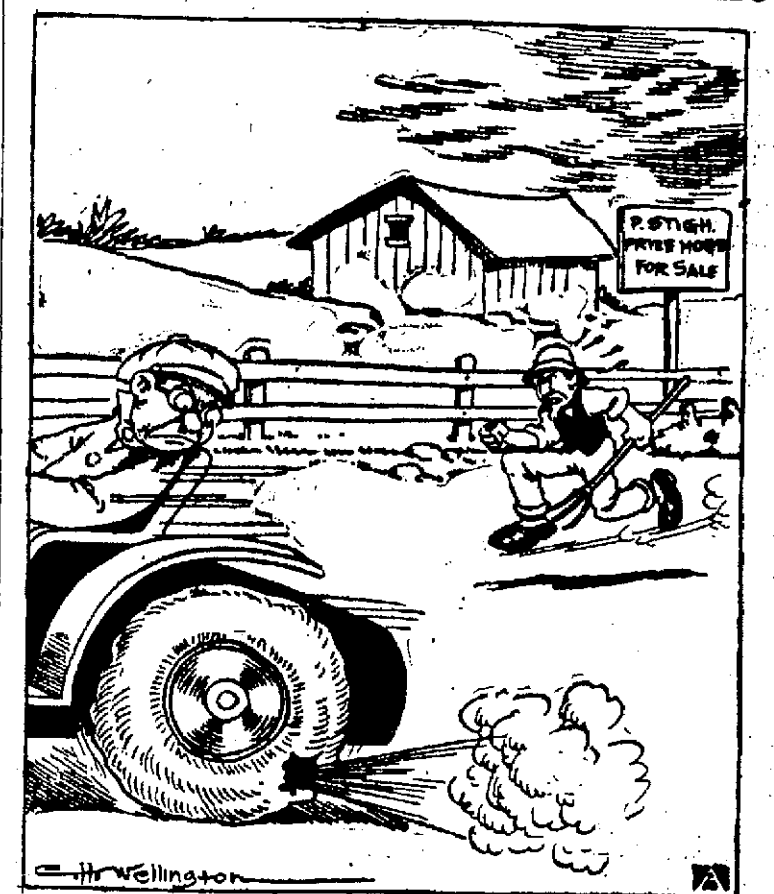

Last evening as C. A. Potter was riding through the streets in a buggy, the horse took fright at a threshing machine and started on a full run. Before he had gone far, the horse became detached from the buggy, leaving the latter and Mr. Potter safely in the street. No damage was done.

There are several cases of epizootic in this city. The team of J. Bates is one of the sickest we have seen; it is in a deplorable condition.

The Janesville Musical Society have ordered a $1,175 Chickering concert grand piano for the church. This will be used until next year, when the new pipe organ will be put up.

The city fathers will meet tonight to administer to the wants of the city.
